Translation Features

(Note: The Database Interface = command buttons, links, and fields that allow you to operate the database, such as the “search” or “help” words and other descriptive terms.)

Changing the Language of a Database Interface:

- Locate the option in the top right corner of the web page. Look for terms like “Languages” or “Preferences.”
- Click the hyperlinked text or drop-down arrow.
- Choose your preferred language.
- You may need to click a button such as “Apply Preferences” or a symbol such as an arrow to “Ok” your choice.
- Now the interface will be translated into the selected language.

Translating an Article:

- Start on the Detailed Record or Record View page, or start on the HTML full text article page.
- Look for “Translate” or “Translate Document” near the top of the article or along the right-hand side of the page.
- Click the hyperlinked text or drop-down arrow.
- Choose your preferred language.
- Click “Translate” if necessary to activate your selection.
- Now the article you are viewing will display in the selected language.
